

I am writing to ask that you please do not allow our Indiana law regarding unwanted marketing phone calls to be weakened. It is my understanding that CBA is bringing a challenge against it.

The new laws have been a wonderful relief the past two years. And in my experience, I still receive two or three pieces of junk mail per day from credit card companies with whom I have cancelled my card and asked that they not send any more correspondence. If this is still happening by mail, I can only imagine what a pain it would be if they were allowed to resume calling.

Please take my personal experience and request into consideration.

Sincerely,
Andrea Anibal
